Research Statement

I am a fourth-year PhD candidate in UIUC, majoring in operations research. I have a special interest in the mechanism design for blockchain and decentralized AI, with a (starry-eyed) dream [i*] on the exploration of the design and theoretical boundaries of decentralized trustworthy AI platforms, for a general scope of reliability and social sustainability in AI and digital economy, including (particularly) the current concern and initiative of AI safety for the upcoming AGI era.

Particularly, I am recently interested in the exploration into a novel paradigm of incentive security on blockchain and AI platforms, which aims to combine game-theoretic and systematic/cryptographic methodologies to prevent dishonest behavior of untrusted but rational parties.

My current research topics span the following:

- AI for mechanism design [#A4M]: e.g., using data-driven methods to improve the performance of economic platforms.
- Mechanism design for AI [#M4A]: e.g., using economic incentives to reinforce the efficiency and security of AI systems, especially on the blockchain platform.
- Sustainability in AI & Economy [#SUS]: e.g., using interdisciplinary methodologies to foster long-term social welfare and environmental friendliness for new-era AI and economic platforms.

Additionally, I was interested in geometry-based computer vision (Visual SLAM in particular) at my undergraduate times. Although I no longer focus on that research field, I am still happy to discuss about related topics, especially the recently fruitful field of Embodied AI [#EAI].
